Project Management in Audits

Auditors need to be effective (by complying with professional standards), but we also need to be efficient. And project management creates efficiency. Managing resources, identifying impediments to audit processes, responding to scope creep—these are just a few of the issues that we encounter. And these challenges can increase engagement time and decrease profits. Worse yet, that promise regarding timely completion can go unmet. Either we will manage our audits, or they will manage us.

The purpose of project management is to enable you to control your audit. But many times, the original scope and particulars of our audits change. And if our project management plan doesn't change concurrently, we lose control.

Mr. Frank Fang, the Chairman of Audit and Assurance Committee, will give a summary of using project management in audits. A team of dedicated experts in their field will join the webinar to take the stress away from you. Give it try. You will find yourself delivering audits on time and on budget.
